

ABSTRACT

The diversity receiving apparatus of the present invention can arbitrarily determine the master branch which is the reference to synchronize the output timing among the symbols of the signals received by a plurality of branches depending on the receiving condition. This structure allows the master branch to be replaced with another branch in excellent receiving condition when the master branch gets into bad receiving condition or when the antenna signal wire on the master side comes off or breaks, thereby achieving the selection and synthesis of carriers.